Addiction and Treatment Services

Drug Treatment can be the First Step in beginning a new life.

We recognize that each individual who turns to us for help comes with a unique personal history and set of circumstances. We do not assume that everyone who contacts us for care is addicted.

Our assessment process provides recommendations and referrals designed to help individuals and families make informed decisions about the next step. These recommendations may include residential treatment, outpatient treatment, further education, or referrals to physicians, mental health practitioners, family counselors, or other helping professionals.

The Outpatient Treatment Program is intended for teens and adults who are dealing with the negative consequences of chemical substance abuse. This program provides an affordable addiction treatment option that gives patients the opportunity to continue living at home and work in the community while attending treatment.

Patients are able to begin implementing the recovery skills developed throughout the program and have the opportunity to process their experience in a safe and supportive group environment. By doing this, they begin to establish a foundation for life-long sobriety.
